NYC Arts + Biz Spotlight: Leesa Matresses

Leesa mattresses and ArtLifting joined to build the Leesa Dream Gallery - the first mattress retail/gallery of its kind. They imprinted a path for social enterprise and business to use art as a means for storytelling, customer engagement, and enhanced quality of life.

Wrapping Up the Diversity in Arts Leadership Internship Program

The Diversity in Arts Leadership internship program concluded with a closing ceremony on August 12th where each intern shared their summer insights and reflections. In 10 weeks, interns worked over 4,800 hours at arts nonprofits in four boroughs, attended 12 site visits, engaged in two professional development workshops, and experienced seven of NYC's most coveted cultural events of the summer!

The DIAL internship program gave me an opportunity to think more extensively about the marriage between arts and business sectors in ways that raise exciting new questions about my place in the work. As people of color it is infinitely important to not only see ourselves in “high art” spaces as well community organizing events, but also taking on leadership roles with this programs and institutions. I am most excited to check in with my fellow DIALers’ who I learned and grew with, to witness their displays of brilliance in all of their future endeavors as they are all incredibly talented and ambitious individuals.

100% of interns agree that the site visits and outings enhanced their understanding of arts management and the artistic community and that DIAL introduced them to a broader range of careers in the arts!

We are so proud of the class of 2016 and can't wait to start planning for the class of 2017. If you would like to learn more about the Diversity in Arts Leadership Internship Program, visit our website or contact Emma Osore, Program Coordinator at eosore@artsandbusiness-ny.org.

What Do Americans Believe About the Arts?

It’s undeniable—the arts transform people and communities every day. But how do United States citizens feel about the arts? Do they value artistic activities and arts education? Do our country’s citizens feel the arts are an important part of their lives and do they support government funding for the arts?

Featured Group Employee Engagement Opportunity

Public Art Fund, New York’s leading presenter of contemporary art projects in public spaces, is seeking large group and individual volunteers to help create one of its most ambitious projects to date.

The project itself consists of a creatively landscaped lawn about 4,000 square feet wide, upon which we will be planting roughly 4,000 baby trees. The planting will take place in mid-September, so the outdoor temperature should be nice and mild. All volunteers will be assisted and supervised by a landscaping expert at all times, as well as by staff members from Public Art Fund.
Thinking About Trying An #ArtsandBiz Engagement?

Let ABC/NY help your company customize individual and group experiences to engage your employees through the arts or help your arts organization leverage the business community to build capacity in a specific area.
