The arts and culture sector (e.g., nonprofit, commercial, education) is a $764 billion industry, which represents 4.2 percent of the nation’s Gross Domestic Product (GDP)—a larger share of the economy than transportation, agriculture, or construction—according to the U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis.

- The arts and cultural sector supported 4.9 million jobs in 2015, up from 4.8 million in 2014.
- Arts and culture had a $21 billion international trade surplus in 2015.
- Arts and culture also represents an important share of state economies, for example: Alaska (2.5 percent), California (7 percent), Tennessee (4.2 percent). Find your state here.
- That the BEA measures arts and cultural production in the U.S. highlights the important role of the arts in building a healthy economy and ensuring our global competitiveness.

Sources: U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis, Gross Domestic Product (GDP) by Industry, Arts and Cultural Production Satellite Account (ACPSA), Travel and Tourism Satellite Account, and Gross Domestic Product by Industry. Updated May 2018