MINNESOTA GIVING OVERVIEW

Increased individual giving caused the rise in total giving. As the economy recovered from recession, individuals began to give more. Grantmaker giving typically declines less steeply than individual giving during times of recession and then rises less sharply as the economy recovers.

Giving Insight

The Margaret A. Cargill Foundation initiated its grantmaking with more than 400 one-time, multiyear grants that were largely paid out in 2011, when it granted more than $142 million. If grants from the Margaret A. Cargill Foundation were not included in 2011 or 2012, grantmaking would have remained flat between the two years. The foundation is launching and growing its formal programs gradually and distributed $42 million in 2012.

1 All values adjusted for inflation to 2012 dollars, using the Consumer Price Index.
Changes in foundation assets in one year can lead to increases or decreases in future grantmaking. This is because foundations typically base their grant levels on a one- to three-year rolling average of their past asset values.

Giving Insight

In 2012, Minnesota was home to 1,450 grantmakers who contributed across 8 major subject areas. The number of grantmakers decreased 1 percent between 2011 and 2012.

Although corporate grantmakers make up a small portion of Minnesota grantmakers, they give nearly half of all grant dollars. Private grantmakers are many but small, with most giving $50,000 or less annually.
