Thomson Reuter’s Melanie Childress Carucci on Building a Culture of Creativity

Melanie Childress Carucci is a Global Business Director at Thomson Reuters and chair of ABC/NY’s Board of Directors. She recently launched Thomson Reuters Arts & Culture (TRAC)—a program geared toward building an outlet for employee creativity. In this interview, Melanie talks about corporate and personal benefits of the arts, as well as her vision for what TRAC could become.

"Engagement in the arts promotes a more innovative and engaged workforce. We are all challenged to provide a fresh perspective or a different lens to solving problems—the arts cultivate this diversity of thought. Participation in the arts can also foster dynamic interactions and collaboration amongst teams, further strengthening our relationships with our colleagues and our customers."

2017 Diversity in Arts Leadership Internship Program

Applications for Arts Hosts and College Students Closing Soon!

Celebrating its 25th anniversary, our Diversity in Arts Leadership (DIAL) internship program is an investment in building a more equitable arts management field and has placed more than 230 students from across the country into more than 100 arts nonprofit organizations in NYC to develop leadership and capacity in the business of the arts.

We match undergraduate students from underrepresented backgrounds with energetic host arts organizations and business mentors who guide students’ personal and professional growth throughout the 10-week summer. The summer includes:

- Full-time work placement at a New York City arts nonprofit
- $3,200 summer stipend and unlimited Metrocard for 10 weeks (arts hosts and ABC/NY both contribute)
- Weekly site visits to arts host sites
- Monthly professional development workshops and cultural outings
- A private sector mentor

Applications for college students and arts hosts close on February 10! Questions? Contact Emma Osore at eosore@artsandbusiness-ny.org.

DIAL is generously supported by our lead sponsor Con Edison with additional support from NYC Department of Cultural Affairs and the Milton and Sally Avery Arts Foundation.

Employee Engagement Opportunity of the Month

Community-Word Project

Founded in 1997, Community-Word Project (CWP) inspires young people to read, interpret, and respond to their world through classroom-based arts residencies and teaching artist trainings. CWP seeks volunteers to engage in its programming during the school day for four specific types of one-time volunteer days:

- Anthology Editing Day – Work one-on-one with students as they prepare original creative writing for publication in a CWP print anthology, then share lunch or a snack.
- Mentor Day – Mentor middle and high school students as they begin to think about their career choices. Volunteers give advice, lead thoughtful discussions, host Q&A sessions, and participate alongside students in arts-based classroom activities.

- Holiday Party – Students practice their writing skills by writing letters with their wish lists of books. Employees grant their wishes by gifting books and joining a classroom for a holiday book celebration (December holidays, Valentine’s Day, before summer vacation or other school break).

- End-of-Year Celebration – Employees cheer on student performers as they take the stage to share their writing and artwork with their community. Join afterwards for a celebration that honors their achievements throughout the year.
