How Can We Help?

ABC/NY’s mission is to develop more creative partnerships between the arts and business communities in New York, enhancing the business skills of the arts sector and promoting creative engagement within the business sector.

ABC/NY is a division of Americans for the Arts.
Local Arts + Biz Spotlight: Con Edison

Con Edison, energy provider to NYC and Westchester County, is a 16-year partner of ABC/NY and funder of over $2.54 million annually in arts and culture funding. They also recognize the value of fostering a corporate culture of community involvement and helping employees develop new skills through nonprofit partnerships. Not only do they financially subsidize ABC/NYs Diversity in Arts Leadership internship program stipends for the summer and provide in-kind event space, but also - here’s the added bonus - their employees have volunteered their personal time to fill two-thirds of DIALs mentor roles.

The Diversity in Arts Leadership program with Con Edison's support is an incredible example of a fully integrated partnership between an arts organization and a corporation. Con Edison invests not only in the arts community and develops leadership in arts and business interns of color but, in its own employees - which ultimately affect its bottom line.

The Rebirth of the David Rockefeller Lecture on Arts & Business

On May 4, the David Rockefeller Lecture on Arts & Business was reborn. Fifty years ago, David Rockefeller—former Chairman and CEO of Chase Manhattan Corporation—gave the founding address for the Business Committee for the Arts. To celebrate the anniversary, on May 4, David Rubenstein—co-founder and CEO of The Carlyle Group, one of the world’s largest private equity firms—revived the lecture series with a humble, humorous, and passionate speech to an audience of more than 200 at The TimesCenter in Manhattan.

Did You Miss the NYC Arts and Biz Meetup?

On the evening of May 12th, The Greenwich Village Chelsea Chamber of Commerce and ABC/NY teamed up to bring over 30 arts and business sector leaders together at the Sum Innovation space to explore how employee engagement can be of mutual benefit for artists or arts organizations and businesses.

Jordan Shue, Private Sector Initiatives Program Manager at Americans for the Arts, highlighted arts and business exemplars from across the country to provide a framework for understanding the possibilities in NYC. Amy Webb, ABC/NY Program Director, shared ABC/NY’s menu of employee engagement options available locally that served to benefit both sectors. Attendees found many mutual connections and were mingling until well after the program had ended!

May Blog Salon: Employee Engagement!

In addition to the release of three workbooks focused on programs that engage business employees using the arts, Americans for the Arts hosted a blog salon from May 16-20 to celebrate the artists, business professionals, and leaders from the local arts agency field who are championing these efforts around the country. Make sure you stop by ARTSblog to read along, and share your own efforts to engage business employees through the arts on Facebook and Twitter.

What's Up with Your Arts Marketing Resources? We Want to Hear From You!

Calling all Arts Organizations! Americans for the Arts and Taproot Foundation are conducting a research study to evaluate the resources in the arts marketing sector. We are interested in how you perceive your organization's ability to compete for earned revenue and where you feel resources are most needed to improve your ability to attract, engage and retain arts patrons. Data collected will be used to inform a White Paper on this topic to be launched in Fall 2016.

The survey consists of multiple choice questions and takes no more than 10 minutes to complete. As an incentive, 20 survey respondents will be randomly selected to receive $50 in American Express gift cards as a thank you for their time. See official rules here.

Survey responses must be submitted by June 17th.
