MURIEL BOWSER
MAYOR

March 23, 2015

Dear Arts Advocates,

It is my distinct privilege to welcome you to Washington, DC for National Arts Advocacy Day. I applaud the Americans for the Arts for bringing you together to support the arts and culture in the United States. Your presence here in our Nation's Capital is a true testament to both the power and the value of the arts in our society.

In the District of Columbia, we have seen firsthand how the arts revitalize communities, spur economic growth and development, create dialogue and improve the quality of life for all of our residents.

The nonprofit arts and cultural sector in the District contributes $1.1 billion to our local economy annually. Ten percent of all jobs in the District of Columbia are in the creative sector. In 2014, Forbes ranked Washington, DC as the "coolest city in America," due in large part to our arts and culture offerings. Simply put, the arts have made and continue to make our city great.

John F. Kennedy's famous words, which are emblazoned across the walls of our own Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, seem appropriate for such an occasion as Arts Advocacy Day: "To further the appreciation of culture among all the people. To increase respect for the creative individual, to widen participation by all the processes and fulfillments of art - this is one of the fascinating challenges of these days."

I wish you all continued success in your efforts to advocate for the arts. Again, I welcome you and wish you all the best in your various states and communities.

Sincerely,

Muriel Bowser
Mayor of the District of Columbia
