To support the translation from the Spanish of the poetry book Tala by Chilean poet Gabriela Mistral. Lucila Godoy Alcayaga (1889-1957)—best known by her pseudonym Gabriela Mistral—was a poet, educator, and humanist who, in 1945, became the first Latin American writer and the fifth woman to receive a Nobel Prize in Literature. She began her career in primary and secondary education and through hundreds of essays on topics such as education, women, children, poverty, literature, culture, and politics, became a world-renowned expert in the fields of education and human rights. After her death, her international prominence and oeuvre were obscured and nearly forgotten. Only her first book is currently available in English, whereas all other Latin America Nobel Prize for Literature recipients have a significant number, if not all, of their major contributions in English translation. Tala is the last work she published before receiving the Nobel Prize.
