WASHINGTON, D.C.—Americans for the Arts will hold its annual convention—the largest gathering of local and state arts leaders in the nation—in Austin, TX, from June 11–13, 2005. Hosted by the Texas Commission on the Arts, the convention, entitled Leading the Charge, will focus on establishing and building partnerships with local, state, and national stakeholders to strengthen our nation’s neighborhoods and cities. Community arts and business leaders will attend to hear noted speakers, share experiences, and build specific skills.

Keynote speakers will include:

- Malcolm Gladwell, author of The Tipping Point and Blink on June 11, 2005
- Alejandro Escovedo, artist, and Edward L. Bailey, Vice President of Brand Development at Austin City Limits on June 12, 2005
- Peggy Conlon, President and CEO at the Advertising Council on June 13, 2005

“Austin is the perfect backdrop for cultural leaders to showcase the arts as a powerful community development tool,” stated Robert L. Lynch, president and CEO of Americans for the Arts. “It serves as a beacon for arts leaders and communities everywhere.”

An Art Car Parade down Austin’s Congress Avenue will kick off the annual convention, as some 50 unique art cars will gather for the parade and will be on display throughout the inaugural evening. The parade is open to the public. The convention will include the annual Innovator Series, featuring one-on-one interviews with Moy Eng, Donald Byrd, Ben Cameron, and Louis Black; tours of Austin’s exciting cultural sites; appearances by local artists; and events throughout Austin.
Prior to the conference, three preconferences will be held:

- The Lay of the Land: Public Art, Politics, and the Environment
  This conference will explore the connections between land art and public art, and examine public art within the social and political landscape

- The New Marketplace: The Best of the Best of United Arts Fund Practices
  Groundbreaking corporate leaders will discuss demographic trends and the emerging marketplace

- Emerging Leadership: Vision. Action. Evolution.
  Arts leaders from across the country will share their vision of the future of the arts
